

2011: January

A draft of the newly revised early childhood and middle grades ELA standards of the National Board of Professional Teaching Standards includes a large section devoted to viewing and visual literacy. (The specific section on viewing and visual literacy can be found on pages 47-52.) The document is now open for public review and comment.

Who Shot Rock N Roll: CMOA photo exhibit, download the teacher guide here

	Searching for the Future of Television Google and the geeks from Silicon Valley aim to revolutionize the 70-year-old TV industry. Conquering the Internet was easy in comparison. By Robert D. Hof
	Teens & Texting Growing Up Digital Is being online and on your cellphone all the time changing the way your brain works?

Coming in the January-February 2011 issue of LMC magazine...media literacy themed issue with contributions by Faith Rogow, David Considine, Frank Gallagher and more