

2012: September

28 Thanks (again) to Joyce Valenza @ SLJ Blog for sharing my media/politics resources

27

 THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 2012 Trends in News Consumption: 1991-2012 In Changing News Landscape, Even Television is Vulnerable FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Andrew Kohut President, Pew Research Center Carroll Roberts and Michael Dimock Associate Directors Scott Keeter Director of Survey Research 1615 L St., N.W., Suite 700 Washington, D.C. 20036 Tel: (202) 419-4100 Fax: (202) 419-4001 www.pewresearch.org	New Pew Report: In Changing News Landscape, Even Television is Vulnerable see some graphics from the report posted in Media Use
--	--

24

 LEFT IN THE DARK Local Election Coverage in the Age of Big-Money Politics By Timothy R. Ryan Free Press September 2012 freepress.org	TV Viewers 'Left in the Dark' About Flood of Political Ads Free Press report finds TV news stations in key battleground markets fail to cover political advertising Link to report
---	---

19

 What Kids Can See When It's Rated TV-PG PARENTS TELEVISION COUNCIL	What Kids Can See When It's Rated TV-PG link to full report
--	--

16 Teachable Moment: Watching The Debates With Students

(MiddleWeb)

Thanks to Cable in the Classroom for republishing Light, Camera, Debate

Thanks to Cable In The Classroom, EDUTOPIA and MiddleWeb for recommending my media/politics resources.

3 Media Literacy & Politics: What Every Student Should Know
(MiddleWeb)