

Language of Film: Documentary

This website, Using Documentaries in the Classroom, is designed for teachers who may already use documentaries in instruction, or those who wish to begin using them in the classroom. Like all media, documentary producers have a point-of-view and it is up to the audience (our students) to be able to decipher it, deconstruct it and understand all of the techniques used which make docs believable. The site also includes recommended periodicals, books, videos and more.
