

Medium: News / Journalism

Resources for incorporating news/journalism into instruction

 Exposing The Truth In News	 Watching TV News: How to be a Smarter Viewer	 Resources for Students and Professors
StudentNewsDaily.com		 Student News

INTRODUCTION

Using the news in the K-12 classroom is an excellent way to engage young people. Reading, writing and creating projects related to the news is part of most state's teaching standards.

Students should be exposed to news via print (newspapers and magazines), and non-print (radio, Television, the Internet.) Both mainstream and non-mainstream sources should be included.

To incorporate media literacy into your existing teaching, I recommend you download the core concepts of media literacy and the critical thinking questions handouts as a way of getting started.

Currently, the news business is going through radical changes as advertisers (and readers) move from traditional print to online services. In addition, young people have gravitated to television and the web for more information.

Using the table of contents on the left, you will find a host of excellent resources, all designed to help you teach with and about the news.

As always, let me know what you think of these resources. Email me at: fbaker1346@aol.com

"INTERESTING....IT'S LIKE A PORTABLE BOOK FILE AND YOU DON'T HAVE TO WAIT FOR IT TO DOWNLOAD.... AND YOU SAY IT'S CALLED A NEWSPAPER?"

